

Anthropology 101 (7230) (UC: CSU) 3 Units

Human Biological Evolution

Examination of the unifying principles of human evolution including: the basic principles of natural selection, the fossil record, the position of humans within the primate order, the features that make Homo sapiens unique.

The Weekend College classes combine online assignments and weekend class meetings in an accelerated format, covering a lot of material in a short period of time. You must complete all components to successfully pass the class. The course requirements are in the instructor's syllabus. See login instructions below. The term is just eight weeks, and you can expect to spend 10 to 12 hours per week completing the assignments. Schedule time in advance for reading the textbook, completing online assignments, and attending class each weekend.

Getting Started

How to Log into Your Class Website:

The class officially begins Monday, June 12th, 2017, and you can access your class website on June 9th at 8 am. For log-in instructions, click on: Canvas.

IN PERSON: Classroom Location Schedule

You must attend class at any one of the four campuses every weekend: L.A. City College, West Los Angeles College, L.A. Mission College, or L.A. Valley College. The instructor teaches the same content material at all four locations each weekend.

Day	Campus	Time	Location
Saturday	L.A. City College	9:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon	Franklin Hall, Room 216
	West Los Angeles College	1:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.	General Classrooms, Room 150
Sunday	L.A. Mission College	9:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon	Instructional Building, Room 1001
	L.A. Valley College	1:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.	Campus Center, Room 202

ACTIVE PARTICIPATION POLICY

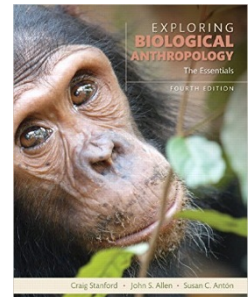

In order for a student to be considered "active" in the class, they must attend one in-person class per weekend and successfully complete online assignments. Students must consistently participate in both components of the course. Students who do not maintain these requirements may be excluded by the instructor.

Students must show valid ID when taking in-person exams.
