Dear Political Science 1 Students:

Welcome to Political Science 1. This is a particularly exciting time to be taking the course, with Presidential candidates scheduled to be nominated in late August and early September, and U.S. elections occurring in November. I hope that this class will provide some insight into the process, and that the election, campaigns, and underlying issues with which our political system is dealing will become more interesting and intelligible to all.

As the class instructor I will briefly introduce myself to you in this letter, and then look forward to meeting you at our first class sessions on September 6 and 7. I have taught American Government and World Politics in the California Community College system since January 2005, and have also instructed courses at CSU Long Beach and UCI. I have a Ph.D. in Political Science from the University of California Irvine, and a Masters degree from San Diego State University, and have pretty much always been interested in how the political system works, why it works as it does, and what goes on beneath the surface. I have done some research in the areas political behavior and international relations, and in my scarce spare time I enjoy songwriting, guitar playing, and keeping up with what is happening in the world.

Our course will necessarily be fast paced because we are covering a semester's worth of work in two months, but it is quite doable. The information for accessing texts, videos and the course website is all available in this letter. In order to keep to the schedule I will ask that all students complete the following assignments by the time of our first meeting: 1) Read the first couple of chapters of the text We The People; 2) from the class website, download and read the class syllabus, and 3) on the class website under Discussions, Student lounge, post to class introductions.

Please come prepared to our first session with any questions you may have, and feel free to email me, if you like, but be sure to include your name and "ITV" in the subject line of your emails.

Welcome Aboard and Best of Luck,

Mike Bressler, Ph.D.
