Future Tense Verb Forms

Simple Future
- is used to express something which will happen or something which will be true in the future.
  - Robert will cook her dinner for their anniversary.
  - She will drive to the store.
- is sometimes expressed by using a verb in the simple present tense form with an adverb or adverbial phrase like tomorrow, next, later, soon, next week, etc.
  - She graduates tomorrow.

Future Perfect
- is used to describe something which will happen in the future before something else happens.
  - The train will have left before you arrive.
  - The wedding will have finished already.

Future Progressive / Future Continuous
- describes actions which will be ongoing in the future.
  - They are going to be traveling this May.
  - Maribel is going to be choreographing a ballet.
- indicates that a longer action in the future will be interrupted by a shorter action in the future.
  - Rosie will be working when he flies in tonight.
  - My daughter will be crying when I turn off Dora the Explorer.

Future Perfect Progressive/ Future Perfect Continuous
- is used to describe future actions which will happen before a specific future time.
  - By the time we graduate, they will have been working for five years.
  - When December arrives, Tina will have been driving for three years.