WHAT IS FAMILY STUDIES?

Family studies is an area of psychological study and research that examines how individuals change and grow and how those changes interact within the family matrix. By studying these changes and interactions researchers strive to create family relationships that enable all members to thrive. You will learn about current issues facing families and explore the areas of family development, family support systems, and workforce opportunities. The program can prepare you for a rewarding career working with children, parents, and families in a variety of settings.
